How We Do Harm A Doctor Breaks Ranks About Being Sick in America

by Otis Webb Brawley, MD and Paul Goldberg
St. Martin's Griffin

Dr. Brawley, better known by his patients and students as Dr. Otis, is a professor of oncology at Emory University and chairman of the cancer therapy department at Atlanta's Grady Memorial Hospital. He is boldly honest about the business of cancer therapy in America and the harm it causes. Using individual patient stories, Dr. Otis leads us through the trials of those folks and their families and critiques the medical system they were negotiating. Published in 2011, Dr. Otis provides one of the first books to take a hard look at the problems of the American medical system. It is a landmark book and should be read by all Americans.

Since reading this book, I have asked recent Emory graduates what they think of Dr. Otis. He is much loved as a great teacher and human being.
